Cosmetic Physicians College of Australasia

The Cosmetic Physicians College of Australasia (CPCA) is a registered not-for-profit body that was formed in 2014 by a group of doctors with a special interest in non-invasive cosmetic medicine.

The CPCA is recognised by Health Departments, Regulators and Medical Defence Insurers as a key stakeholder. It is one of more than 70 signatories to the Australian Ethical Healthcare Alliance group, made up of health fraternities recognised by APEC and WHO. The CPCA is devoted to protecting and supporting its members' interests while ensuring patient safety through public education and awareness. It provides the public with up-to-date information while assisting them to locate our qualified doctors who share our common goals.

The purpose of the College is to provide representation and education in the area of cosmetic medicine for the Members and Fellows of the Cosmetic Physicians College of Australasia. We also support public education and awareness of cosmetic medicine. To fulfil this mission, the College will implement cosmetic medical educational programs and support research into cosmetic medical treatments that will in turn aid and support medical practitioners wishing to further their knowledge of cosmetic medicine. The College objectives will be furthered by our cooperation with other health professionals, like minded associations, institutes, governments, corporations, and medical practitioners from other medical disciplines that also hold an interest in cosmetic medicine.
